responsibilities, maximize their impact on the job, while remaining true to their calling and networking with other professionals in their field.

Based on those responses, Disciples Today offered to host a second Christian Professionals Conference for disciples in the American and Canadian churches in response to this need. We believe that this conference will only serve to add wisdom to the life of a professional but also encourage them to work closer with their churches. Disciples young and old will benefit from speakers who have experienced spiritual success their personal life and workplace that we can all benefit from.

Early Registration for Christian Professionals Conference Ends Sunday

Written by Disciples Today

The first Christian Professionals Conference in our family of churches was held in Chicago in 2013. Earlier this year Disciples Today polled the church leadership and the attendees at the first event and they expressed a strong desire for another meeting like this, for professionals to come together to learn and discuss how they could use their talents and resources to build up the kingdom.

At Reach2016, we witnessed overwhelming response to a luncheon, where 200 disciples showed up to fill 100 reservations and 400 disciples attended an executive coaching workshop on how to advance their career to help grow the church.

The result of that meeting was an urgent request from the disciples in our North American churches who hold key positions in companies to learn how to work more closely with the leadership in their churches, navigate the demands of work and family
